PETROLEUM ENVIRONMENTAL SEARCH REQUEST ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Description

Details held on the history of specific premises with regard to there having been petrol tanks – this would take the form of number and size of tanks, current usage and any known history of leaks or spillages at the premises. Any personal data contained are exempt from disclosure by virtue of the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). Some other information may also be exempt, either under FOIA or under the Environmental Information Regulations. All exempt information is excluded from this class and will be removed before copies of reports are provided.

Submission Guidance

The Commissioner's Environmental Search databases are all related to individual postal addresses. We can only search on specific full postal addresses (including the post code) and/or building/unit number(s) where applicable.

Therefore the only way that we can reasonably provide the Environmental Search service is by responding to individual search requests for specific addresses. We are unable to process search requests for large plots of land and/or multiple buildings that do not contain individual address information. An applicant must submit a separate search request form for each building address.

We suggest that if the applicant requires a search on an area of land which encompasses many properties/addresses, they should initially identify the most likely locations for underground storage tanks such as premises that are likely to have been petrol filling stations, transport depots, commercial yards etc. Having identified these types of premises, a separate search request form must be completed for each individual unit/building address to be searched.

NOTE: SHOULD THE ADDRESS OF THE LOCATION HAVE BEEN CHANGED SINCE THE PREMISES WERE LAST LICENSED FOR THE KEEPING OF PETROL, OUR SEARCH WILL PROVE NEGATIVE. SHOULD A SEARCH BE REQUESTED FOR A SINGLE LOCATION WITH BOTH CURRENT AND HISTORIC ADDRESSES THIS WILL BE TREATED AS A SINGLE SEARCH.

Charges (Cost recovery for providing the statutory service)

For searching our records, both current and historical a charge of £70 + VAT will be incurred. This is the minimum charge for searches, even for those that do not reveal any petroleum related history at the premises.

Should our search reveal a history of petroleum storage at the premises, the completion of an 'Environmental Survey' (positive response) will attract an additional fee of £70 + VAT (a total of £140 + VAT).

See Notes below for additional charges payable for copies of drawings and an express service.

Express Service

The Commissioner will offer an express service, defined as the search being completed and dispatched within five working days. The charge for this service is £240 + VAT whether the search reveals any petroleum history at the premises or not.

Notes

An additional fee of £5 + VAT is chargeable for each drawing relating to the premises that is attached to an Environmental Survey. (The applicant will be contacted during the completion of the search and questioned as to whether they require copies of any available drawings).

Day/Date of receipt

Please note that Environmental Searches must be submitted prior to 10:00hrs on a normal working day to ensure that the day is counted as the first day of either the 5 working day or 20 working day time period as applicable.

Availability

Email and postal service. Wherever possible, we will respond by email (and provide a hardcopy if requested). When copies of drawings have been requested, we can only send these by post.

A request for an environmental survey must be made in writing at the details below (request will only be accepted when submitted on the template provided on Page 1), quoting the full address of the property concerned. An invoice for the fee is sent under separate cover on completion of the search / survey.
