

Help shape the

Grenfell
Memory
Project

LONDON FIRE BRIGADE

What is the Grenfell Memory Project?

The Memory Project is a series of initiatives to collectively remember and honour the lives lost in the Grenfell Tower tragedy and create a lasting legacy.

As part of the civil Settlement Agreement in March 2023, London Fire Brigade (LFB) pledged £8.25 million to create a Memory Project that honours those lost and establishes a lasting legacy. Now, we would value your input to take this forward.

London Fire Brigade wants to work with you

We are deeply committed to engaging with the immediate family members* of those who lost their lives in the Grenfell Tower tragedy, survivors, and the wider Grenfell community.

We're seeking your ideas and feedback to ensure it reflects the aspirations and priorities of loved ones left behind, survivors and the Grenfell community.

* Immediate family members of the deceased refers to the following relatives of those who lost their lives in the Grenfell Tower tragedy – spouse or partner; parents; children; siblings; grandparents; grandchildren: children of siblings; family nominated relatives.

How you can get involved

Co-design the Grenfell Memory Project through the following options:

1

Book a private meeting

Arrange a one-to-one consultation with our Consultation and Engagement Lead, Angela Basoah.

Email: grenfell.engagement@london-fire.gov.uk

Call or text: 07385 382 580

2

Share your ideas online

Use our online form to contribute privately and at your convenience: london-fire.gov.uk/memory-project/

3

Spread the word

Encourage others to get involved and share their perspectives.

Learn more

For full details about the Grenfell Memory Project, scan the QR code or visit:
london-fire.gov.uk/memory-project/

Together, we can create a meaningful legacy.

You can request a translation of this leaflet by emailing:
grenfell.engagement@london-fire.gov.uk

LONDON FIRE BRIGADE